Collaborating with two other designers, I helped create a poster for a Coffee Catch-Up event tailored to computing students. The goal was to design a poster that would appeal to students in tech fields, combining a relaxed atmosphere with a subtle coding theme.

To achieve this, our team worked on incorporating elements that resonate with computing students while maintaining a warm, coffee-centric vibe. The poster design features stylized code snippets and coffee-related imagery, such as coffee cups and beans. This fusion of tech and coffee helps bridge the gap between academic interests and social gatherings.
